

Call for applications for the "Paul Martini Young Talent Award Clinical Research 2024"

The Paul Martini Foundation is organising the Paul Martini Young Scientist Award for Clinical Research in Germany for the first time in 2024.

The prize honours up to three scientists up to the age of 35 for outstanding achievements and projects in the field of clinical research and clinical pharmacology. The award is endowed with EUR 6,000 each. On application, family periods and comparable special circumstances can be taken into account when determining the age limit.

Measurable successes (including publications), the innovative character of e.g. recruitment strategies for study participants, evaluation methods, overcoming bureaucratic obstacles, the coordination of (inter)national investigator groups or examples of cooperation and even training concepts outside established formats are assessed. Objective results that contribute to advancing the success of clinical research in Germany and possibly even securing it in the long term are thus taken into account in the selection process.

The closing date for entries is 15th September 2024.

A three-member scientific board chaired by Prof Dr Stefan Endres, Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität München, will select up to three prize winners. The Paul Martini Young Investigator Award for Clinical Research will be presented at the Paul Martini Foundation's annual autumn symposium on 29/30 November in Berlin.

The projects to be submitted should (in abstract format; background - methods - results - discussion - summary; max. 500 words) present objectifiable results or successes. In the case of (up to three) submitted publications, these should have been published or accepted for publication as first or last authorship within the current or last two years.

The letter of application (with the title of the project or work and address) must be accompanied by the following attachments:

- Abstract and any related publications and documents
- Curriculum vitae of the applicant
- (with professional position and activity, please no photo)
- List of publications from the current and last three years
- Short one-page letter of support

Please send your application via e-mail as pdf to katja.sommer@paul-martini-stiftung.de.